I don't know of anybody who hasn't eaten at Hasenour's. Whether it was at the original location at Floyd and Breckenridge Streets, or at the newer Barret and Oak Street location, Hasenour's was known throughout Louisville for great food at a reasonable price. The owner was Ed Hasenour. It can be said that he supported and rooted for Male High School first, but right behind the bulldogs he made every effort to make sure that all the high schools in Louisville, as well as many amateur athletic teams were given a helping hand whenever he could. Besides being a restaurateur, his backing of the Kentucky Derby Festival and other ventures cemented his place in Louisville history. For many years the Courier Journal kept count of individual points scored for the local high school football teams. The names of the players with the most points would be published weekly in the newspaper. In 1946 Ed Hasenour started presenting a trophy to the winner of this yearly scoring contest. This continued until 1961 when the KHSAA halted the practice. Flaget was well represented with Lou Karibo winning the trophy in 1949 followed by Sherrill Sipes in 1952. But the Flaget connection does not stop there. A similar trophy was awarded each year by Ed Hasenour to the basketball player scoring the most points. Tom Finnegan secured one of these trophies in 1959, the only Flaget athlete to do so. The Museum has recently acquired this trophy among many other items donated by Tom Finnegan's widow. We are most pleased to have them on display. The coveted Hasenour Trophy is on display in front of the room should you want to view it. You might stop by the museum to see all the Flaget memorabilia on display.

THE MUSEUM IS VERY GLAD TO ACCEPT ANY VINTAGE FLAGET MEMORABILIA YOU MAY WANT TO DONATE. SIMPLY DROP IT OFF AT THE MUSEUM LOCATION OR CALL ME IF YOU PREFER TO HAVE IT PICKED UP. YOU CAN ALSO BRING IT TO ANY ALUMNI LUNCHEON.

THE MUSEUM IS SEEKING A 5' OR 6' LONG DISPLAY CASE IF YOU KNOW OF ONE, REASONABLY PRICED, PLEASE LET CINDY KNOW ABOUT IT. THANKS.
